Well, the academic school year is finally over here at San Jose State University. As the students are preparing for finals, I've been busy packing and preparing for my summer assignment and reflecting on all that God has done over the past year.

Looking back, I really see God's sovereignty in placing me here in this ministry. In many ways, I feel like I've experienced more growth than anyone I've had the opportunity to minister to. Yet God has also blessed me with a ministry that has exceeded my expectations.

I've not only seen students come to know Christ, mature in their faith, and seek to have an impact for Him, but I myself have been challenged to step outside of my comfort zone and trust Christ. I feel like I'm just beginning to really understand what it means to walk by faith. Sometimes it's scary, but it's never dull and it's exciting!

This summer I'll be in Santa Cruz, CA where I'll be staffing a beach project. We've recruited 60 students from all over the nation to spend their summer with us, where we'll give them training in evangelism and discipleship. I'm particularly excited because two of the guys I've been disciplining, Brad and Eric, will be there this summer with me.

Please pray for me this summer as well as my disciples. Pray also that God would meet my financial needs. I need to raise about $600 in one-time support to cover my expenses this summer.

Thank you so much for your part in making this a great year. I fully expect God to do even greater things next year as a result of your faithfulness!

Serving Christ together,

P.S. I've enclosed an article that was printed in the school newspaper concerning an outreach we had at Easter. We're making Christ an issue on campus!
